The diagram illustrates a multi-processor system with a shared bus. On the left, there are two processors, K1 and K2, each with a 'BYE' label. To their right are two memory modules, K3 and K4, also each with a 'BYE' label. All four components are connected to a common horizontal bus line on the right. The bus line is a single horizontal line that all components connect to. The components are arranged in two rows: K1 and K2 on top, and K3 and K4 on the bottom. The bus line is a single horizontal line on the right side of the diagram.
